Sergio Custodio advises clients on a broad range of business matters, with a focus on real estate, commercial transactions, financings, infrastructure and acquisitions and dispositions of businesses and assets. He is sought out for his ability to consistently close even the most complicated and fast-paced transactions.

Sergio provides general counsel and transactional advice to a wide variety of clients participating in diverse and often specialized and complex industry sectors including: transportation, hospitality, healthcare, education, and technology.

Executives and entrepreneurs count on Sergio to understand what it takes to keep them at the top of their game. They also rely on him to provide the strategic guidance that only experience working in a business can bring. This allows him to effectively advise on business matters, including those intersecting private business and governments.
